1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 10-13, 15, 16, 18, 21-23, 29, 30, 32 and 33 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Sidler. Sidler discloses a shut off device that protect against pipeline explosions including a slide valve plate 11, a piston rod 26, a piston 22, a cylinder 25, a pressure medium reservoir 19, a closing valve 30, a housing forming the pressure medium reservoir 20, and a vent valve (see claim 13) 40. In regard to claim 18, figures 1 and 2 clearly show a housing as claimed covering the valve 30 and generic further elements.

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 14, 19, 20, 24 and 31 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Sidler in view of Pierson et al. Sidler discloses a piston cylinder controlled slide valve substantially as claimed but does not disclose the use of two pistons in two cylinders. However, Pierson teaches another slide valve having two piston cylinders combinations apparently for the purpose of attaining a more balanced control of the slide plate movement by having two support points on opposed distal sides of the valve plate. Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to provide the slide valve of Sidler with two pistons and cylinders as, for example, taught by Pierson in order to attain a more balanced control of the slide plate movement by having two support points on opposed distal sides of the valve plate.

5. Claims 17, 25, 27, 28 and 34 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Sidler in view of King. Sidler discloses a slide valve substantially as claimed but does not disclose the claimed end seal. However, King teaches another slide valve having an abutment strip 68, an elastomer part 70 and an existing space 20 into which the elastomer part is moved, including movement of the abutment strip as disclosed on col. 4, lines 17-29, for the purpose of attaining a better seal with the valve plate. Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to provide the slide valve of Sidler with an existing space end seal as, for example, taught by King in order attain a better seal with the valve plate.

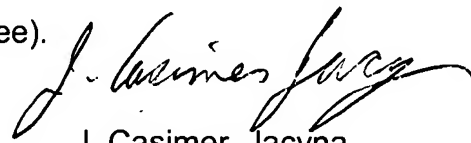

6. Claim 26 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over as applied to claim 14 above, and further in view of King. The modification of Sidler in view of King with respect to the end seal is discussed in the rejection of claim 17 above.

7. Acknowledgment is made of applicant's claim for foreign priority based on an application filed in Switzerland on 9/25/2002. It is noted, however, that applicant has not filed a certified copy of the Swiss application as required by 35 U.S.C. 119(b).
